

The Secret Sharer (Joseph Conrad) Resume

The protagonist was a young man, new on the boat, who had just become captain, but felt uneasy and unwelcome. A stranger on the boat.

After a new boat, the Sephora, came in the Gulf he decided to take a shift, on watch.

That night, before he could take the ladder in, he found a sailor in the sea.

The man's name was Leggatt. He was a chief on the Sephora, before he had accidentally killed a man.

He didn't want to be judged, because he believed of being in the right. This man was very similar to the protagonist, who decided to help him.

In order to hide Leggatt the protagonist had to act odd, to which his crew believed him drunk. Leggatt had to hide in the bathroom.

Next day the captain of the Sephora came to look for Leggatt. He didn't like Leggatt, nor the captain of the ship.

That day the captain understood he felt like a splitted person. He was always thinking of Leggatt and couldn't concentrate on the manoeuvres to make.

After 4 days Leggatt was almost discovered. He decided to part.

The protagonist helped him by going near the coast, a risky act. He almost failed, but was helped back by Leggatt's hat, which he used as a reference.
